Something 'sounds' fishy in this speaker

KUALA LUMPUR: A HiFi system can literally get the audience high – police found RM13,600 worth of drugs hidden inside.

On July 15 at about 4.40am, a police team conducted a check at a night club in the Shamelin area. Investigations in the control room led to the discovery of the drug-filled speaker.

"Among the drugs found were 211g of ecstasy powder, and 192g of cannabis," said Cheras acting district police chief Supt Kamal Khan Mohd Shariff in a statement yesterday.

The club had been raided in the past, and had only recently restarted operations under a new management.

"Between 2017 and 2018, police have raided the club four times and those raids had led to arrests. However, there were no arrests this time," he said.
